Public censure by order entered October 5, 1987. He represented a criminal defendant and after his client's conviction, he failed to communicate adequately to his client the legal consequences of failing to file a motion for a new trial. In another matter, he accepted over $2,000 to possibly pay off some bad checks his client had been charged with passing. He did not deposit the money in his escrow account as required. He also neglected the case and did not communicate adequately with his client.
