MEMPHIS ATTORNEY HELD IN CONTEMPT

On May 19, 2006, the Tennessee Supreme Court adjudicated Warner Hodges, III to be in willful criminal contempt of the Tennessee Supreme Court beyond a reasonable doubt and ordered that Warner Hodges, III serve ten (10) days in jail and be fined fifty dollars ($50.00). The Court ordered that the ten (10) days of incarceration is suspended pending Hodges' compliance with all Orders of the Court, including the monitoring agreement with Tennessee Lawyers Assistance Program. Additionally, the Court ordered that the accumulated costs of the cause are taxed against Warner Hodges, III. Hodges engaged in the practice of law by advising Harlan Davidson and drafting documents to be filed by Davidson in contravention of the Supreme Court's Order of July 11, 2005 suspending Hodges from the practice of law.
